Today

Dyer at Devotional

Elder Alvin R. Dyer, assistant to the Council of the Twelve, will speak at Devotional Assembly today at 10 a.m. in the HFAC Concert Hall.

Elder Dyer was ordained an apostle in October 1967 after serving as an assistant to the Council of Twelve since 1958, and was a member of the First Presidency for several years during the administration of President David O. McKay, beginning in April 1968.

He is former president of the European Mission and the Central States Mission, and also has served as first assistant general superintendent of the Young Men's Mutual Improvement Association.

He is now a supervisor of the North American-Spanish missions, which include Central America, Guatemala-El Salvador, Mexico (all) and Texas South. The area is under the direction of Elder Thomas S. Monson of the Council of the Twelve.

Largely a self-educated man, he was formerly an engineer in the heating and ventilation field.

Elder Dyer is the author of many books, including The Falacy and Who Am I. His many years of missionary service led to the publication of several books such as The Challenge, The Meaning of Truth and The Lord Speaketh.

According to survey

Nixon's popularity up

Young people's approval of President Nixon rose sharply after his recent announcement that he would visit the People's Republic of China before May of 1972, a recent survey announced.

Conducted by the Opinion Research Corporation, the survey indicated that approval from people in the 18-29-year-old group increased 11% from a survey taken June 5-6. Of this age group, 46% approved in the June survey of the way Nixon is handling his job as President as compared with 57% in the later July 20-21 survey.

In both surveys approximately 1,000 persons were asked the following question: "Do you approve or disapprove of the way Richard Nixon is handling his job as President?"

In the later survey, 33% disapproved of Nixon's actions while 10% offered no opinion. In the earlier survey, 42% disapproved and 12% had no opinion.

The 18-29-year-old group provided the strongest support of Nixon's decision to visit Peking, when asked the question:

"Do you personally believe that it is a good thing that President Nixon had decided to visit the People's Republic of China, or isn't it?"

73% of this age group believe it is a good thing that the President will travel to China, while 17% said it was not a good thing, and 10% had no opinion.

Of the total public, which consisted of two other groups, 30-49-year-olds and 50-year-olds and over, 67% said it was a good thing and 20% said it was not a good thing. 13% gave no opinion.

Scoresby will speak

Featured at tomorrow's Talmage Lecture Series will be assistant-professor of child development and family relations, Dr. Lynn Scoresby.

Her address, entitled "Difference isn't disloyalty—it's difference," will be given at 12 noon in room 184 JKB. A question-and-answer period is scheduled to follow the talk.

Scoresby, who has been at BYU since June 1970, says he feels Mormons program themselves to make group choices. "Similarity is right," he adds, "and those people who don't behave like us are wrong by definition."

He says he chose to speak on this topic because he feels there are many ways a person can become involved, not only in Church service, but also in helping the young of the Church and those in the non-LDS community. He expressed the belief that differences should not be an obstacle in reaching these people.

Scoresby is now serving on the General Board of the YMMIA, with a specific assignment to plan the Venturer program. He received a bachelor's degree from BYU in 1965 in history and in 1966 was awarded a master's in counseling and psychology by BYU.

Letters to the Editor

LONG-HAIRS

At the risk of annoying some, provoking others, and enlightening a few, I am writing to you in a reasonable manner against a phenomenon of the long-haired faddist in our society. In the first place I think we should all be aware of the fact that long hair was the symbol of the New Left. The New Left, in faddist fashion, and that it still maintains those initial connotations. Of course it has only been a few years since this phenomenon was started, but during this time it has grown to become one of the more expedient moral issues of our day. So with this moral contention in mind, I'd like to begin by defining what a faddist is in terms of his distinctive social and psychological dispositions. Basically he is a rather responsible and law-abiding citizen who is opposed to violence as a means of social or political change. Nevertheless, he is a bit of a cynic. I consider that the current fads and fashions make it hard for him to see any moral distinctions in this regard, and so he finds himself, again, in his appearance as a militant, who does whatever he wants and the world overthrows of society. Thus through the minimal exercise of reason it becomes readily apparent that the paradoxical psychology of the faddist has placed him in an entire social situation which seems almost untenable. Then why does he choose this position in the face of the current liberal/conservative conflict, and what justification can he give for his apparently irrational behavior?

Well, I'm not sure that I could exhaustively label all the categorical reasons he might give in support of his position, but I do know that what I can tell you is at the heart of the most common ones. First of all there is the "liberal supporter", and I perceive that many or most faddists do hold to some significant degree of liberal thought or sympathy. This is the reason a long-haired faddist in the presence of public opposition. Consequently if one could measure this degree of liberal thought it might be a highly significant factor in determining the ultimate social and ideological position of the subject in question.

Secondly we have the "humanitarian compromiser", and as I see it this is the individual who feels that the cause of ideology is so important that it should divide people. Often he may feel that issues and ideologies are relatively unimportant or harmless and that close human relations will solve all social and political problems. In the case of the present faddist this means that he has chosen the rather dubious task of reconciling the forces of pro-establishment with the forces of non-establishment. Now, in this he sees a double symbol which indicates his ideological leaning and his feelings that the larger society should always move to accommodate the underdog and his standards.

Then there is the individual who could only be referred to as the "pure faddist" (if in fact he really does exist). This person would tell you that he holds no ideological position in regard to any other than his purpose, the fad. He has no merit for the fad itself. He enjoys the status of being a member of a rather unique group which thrives on novelty for its own sake and he enjoys the spontaneity of social regard, whether it brings him admiration and/or mild sense of nostalgia. At any rate, I must assume that this particular category could only exist in an environment where the subject was either ignorant of or unimpressed by the current conditions.

Now, with the preliminaries of dispositions defined, I am prepared to move into the real substance of my argument by dealing with the question of harms. In regard to this question of harms I must say that both society and the individual faddist are bound to suffer from the faddist's inconsistency. Of course, in the case of the faddist the problem is actually one of being correctly identified and set apart from the mass of society so that one can go free while the militant receives the sanctions he deserves. Conversely, it is society's duty to see that the innocent are protected while the guilty are punished in order that justice might be served. But how can justice be served when the faddist is a social organism on looking like its opponent. In answer to this question the faddist is likely to say that you can't really know what a person is like by his appearance, but that you have to sit down and talk to him. Now, this is a rather obvious answer on many occasions, however it is highly impractical in the middle of a riot when faddists and militants are mangled together. In such a situation the faddist is as likely to be arrested as the militiaman even though he was only passing through when the hostilities began. Then with this particular situation recurring it is almost impossible to see how the innocent faddist will be handled in from time to time and possibly develop feelings of persecution in response to the law enforcement agencies and/or society.

Finally, there is the consideration of human which society is subjected to within the context of this dilemma. These stems first of all from the fact that whenever society is in some way threatened by a particular group it's function of dispensing justice, it will lose a portion of the support of its people according to the type and degree at which it is incapacitated.

Thus, if society can't be expedient in meeting the faddist's requirements for justice then it could lose its support and become that much weaker by its loss. Nevertheless, this is only half the problem, for when the faddist has become emotionally alienated from society and its norms he will undoubtedly be followed by the militant liberals (whom he resembles). They will call him brother, curse his fate along with the society which they originally brought it about, and gradually begin to socialize him into their own cause.

So you see, the faddist may go from the position of being a friend and brother to the position of society's enemy before he is really aware and especially if he is more emotional than rational in his judgment. In any case, whether he chooses to be for or against society, the agent of social and dispersive as the proponents of a radical symbol will still be an advantage to the militant group. In the event he chooses to support society and its norms they can use him as a cover for their own activities. This is the reason he would become estranged from society they can easily work with him as a possible subject for future conversion. And ultimately, if all goes according to plan, they can use him as a fighting member of their cause.

Therefore, in closing, I would hope that the faddist would be advised to the fact that there is a morality to fad and fashion and realize that long hair has certain negative symbolic associations which cause problems for both himself and society.

Respectfully yours,
Richard Paxton

Prov citizens expect of us as members of their community and the community expects of us what to expect of us as students. Therefore, we propose the following:

1. We propose there be a committee made up of the students concerning the student body of BYU and a group of community minded citizens to discuss community problems which involves both groups.

2. We propose that the Daily Universe (BYU newspaper) have a column that deals with the student's problems in the community. This column could be open to citizens having their voice approved by the above committee.

3. We propose that a similar article should be run in the Provo Daily Herald for the purpose of meeting the above needs.

We feel that by doing the above that we as students could be more aware of our responsibilities as citizens and better relations would exist.

Sincerely,

RESPONSIBILITIES

It has come to our attention, after four years of college, that we as students are not aware of our responsibilities to our community. This has been concerned with BYU with little regard for the community. The community has made us aware of this lack of interest in the form of derogatory comments made in our presence. The blame for this cannot fall on either group but less with both because of lack of communication.

We as students don't know what

RESPONSIBILITIES

I read with great interest the article reporting the comments of BYU professors regarding Nixon's Red China trip. I harbor mixed emotions regarding this trip, i.e. our new friendship with the Chinese Communists and Nixon's credibility, since for years he's been telling his followers he was in support of our former policy toward Red China. Now he finds himself in a bind—on the one hand for friendship and support of Red China.

Professor Hyer's remarks remind me of a book I think he forgot, Wedemeyer Reports by General Wedemeyer, which documents the diplomatic language and selling of Nationalist China to the Chinese Communists during and after WW II. And perhaps Hyer missed the significance of the gift we gave Suo Lin at the Yenan Chinese University, which is Chinese property. It was sometime before we bothered to inform the Chinese. We continued little tricks like this until Nationalist China was lost.

And Hyer's closing remark, "As for the United States and China, the only real conflict is China's commitment to world revolution, and that is more Marxist rhetoric than genuine Chinese. Wedemeyer's report of that sentiment, which was promoted by the American press and held by the State Department, clouded our ability in coming to grips with the problem during and after WW II. The man seen by Chinese Communists at that time (led by Mao and Chou), was that the Chinese Communists were only agrarian reformers (with the good of the Chinese as their only interest), following Mao, the Chinese then paid tribute to Mother Russia and Father Stalin. And look what the loss of China has cost us. Instead of hundreds of millions of Chinese following Communism, a small number of Communists, we have these same millions following Mao and Chou, in what British said is the most propaganda situation in the world."

Anti-Communist attitudes are rather gather in William R. Kenner, professor of political science at the University of Pennsylvania and an expert on American foreign policy which necessitated his thorough study of the strategy of the USSR and other Communists. He has this to say about what is said in the House Committee on Internal Security's report, "Theory and Practice of Communism in 1970." He reports that early anti-Communists were so sure that the Communists leaders then launched a campaign to render the anti-Communists foolish and to simultaneously attract the liberal left. Kenner also discussed the "transmission belt" which gave the Communists to recruit and train new information, demonstrations, and concepts in this country.

It will be very interesting to see what Nixon brings back from his Red China tour, but more interesting to see what he gives away.

Sincerely,

Sub-satellite put in orbit

Apollo 15 astronauts conducted history's first launch of a sub-satellite by a manned spacecraft last week. The satellite will remain in lunar orbit for up to one year, gathering information on the moon and its environment.

Another first made in space history

Astronaut Alfred M. Worden made the first truly working spacewalk in deep space Thursday. Worden walked 18 feet from the cabin of the command ship to the camera compartment in the service module to retrieve film of the moon's surface.

1972 draft lottery drawn

The Selective Service System conducted a lottery last week which determined the order of induction for the nearly two million young men born in 1952. However, the Senate has still not approved legislation to revive the draft, so President Nixon is still left without draft authority, at least until after mid-September.

Administration favors plan to limit funds

The Nixon administration has recently come out in favor of a plan that would limit spending for the 1972 campaign to about $14 million per party. This would limit campaign spending to 10 cents for each potential voter and avoid the exorbitant expenses of past elections.

Ping pong team to meet BYU

The Free China ping pong team, on tour throughout the United States, will meet the BYU championship team tonight at 8 p.m. in the Orem High School auditorium.

The Chinese team arrived in Salt Lake City today as part of a two-month tour taking them through most of the major cities in the country. The tour will culminate in an exhibition match in Washington, D.C. and, hopefully, a meeting with President Nixon. As part of their stay in Utah, the team will tour Temple Square today and meet with state dignitaries.

The eight-member team is primarily comprised of the champion players of Taiwan. They include, however, current team champion Y. L. Chen and all-Hong Kong champion C. H. Nei.

The tour is sponsored nationally by the United States March for Victory Committee and in Utah by the Timpanogos Train Committee. Admission to this evening's match is free.

New course offered

A new course, Linguistics 205, will be offered by BYU this fall for the first time. The course will be taught by Professor Robert Blair and Ray Baird, will provide three hours of general education credit in humanities.

Students interested in the course may contact Professor Baird in 238 MCKEE or call ext. 2383 for more information.

According to Professor Baird, the course will allow the teacher to define tasks which students must perform to pass certain modules.

The Melos String Quartet

Chamber ensemble to perform

The Melos String Quartet from Stuttgart, Germany, will perform at BYU-Thursday in an evening concert and at the morning Forum assembly.

The ensemble begins at 10 a.m. and the concert at 8:15 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Performers are Wilhelm Melcher and Gerhard Voss, violin; and Hermann Voss, viola, and Peter Buck, cello. Their program will feature quartets by Debussy, Schubert and Mozart.

The quartet was formed in 1961 and the following year they won the special "Prize Award" for best quartet in the Concours International in Geneva.

They also received the international award at the "Villa Lobos String Quartet Contest" in Rio de Janeiro.

Last year they received the first prize donated by the cultural committee of the American Chamber of German Industry and they performed at a concert in memory of Beethoven's 200th birthday in Bonn.

In 1967 they began international tours with concerts in Austria, Switzerland, Italy, Middle East, France, Great Britain and Hungary.

This year they are on a performing tour of Italy, Russia, Spain, North Africa, U.S. and International prints shown

An international print display is now on exhibit in the B. F. Lansen Gallery of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

From 55 various sized pieces have been selected from the International Graphic Arts Society and organized by the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C.

The contemporary prints range from abstract to expressionistic with a great deal of emphasis on texture and form and color.

The prints have been executed by means of woodcut, silkscreen, etching, lithograph and mixed media. The display will remain on exhibit until September.

South America. Next year they plan to visit South Africa and Russia.

Wilhelm Melcher studied at the Hamburg Conservatory, and in 1962 he received the first prize at the International Contest of chamber music in Venice.

Gerhard Voss studied at the Robert Schumann Conservatory in Dusseldorf and at the conservatories in Cologne and Freiburg. For two years he was first violinist of the Wurttemberg Chamber Orchestra.

Hermann Voss also studied at the Robert Schumann Conservatory and the conservatory in Freiburg. In 1959 he received first prize at the contest of German Conservatories. He has also served as solo violinist of the Stuttgart Chamber Orchestra.

Peter Buck studied at the Conservatory of Stuttgart and was the award winner in the contest of German Conservatories in Munich in 1960. He has also been solo-cellist of the Wurttemberg Chamber Orchestra.

Christopher Bean' begins run at BYU

The American folk comedy The Late Christopher Bean begins its BYU run tomorrow night in the Pardoe Drama Theatre of the Harris Fine Arts center.

Playing nightly at 8 p.m., Wednesday through Saturday, the play, aведен by Sidney Howard, will be directed by Dr. Charles Merkin. Tickets are now available in the drama box office of the HFAC.

AS THE PLAY opens, a series of art dealers are shown arriving at the home of the Haggerts, a family of New Englanders, who are in their possession a number of original Christopher Bean paintings which evidently are worth more than most of them.

David R. Phillips, a junior dramatic arts major from Provo, will play Dr. Haggert, an indistinguishable rural medical man of middle age, who had a number of years ago given refuge to Christopher Bean when he was ill.

Abby, the family servant who was also kind to Bean, is portrayed by Patricia Lautenschlager, a freshman in speech and drama from Opal, Wyoming. Dr. Haggert's daughter, Susan, is portrayed by Diane Dunkley, a junior drama major from Seattle, Wash.

Ada, the other sister, is played by Pam Gorman, a senior in drama from Chico, Calif.

MRS. HAGGETT, who turns greedy and selfish when with her husband when they discover that Christopher Bean's paintings are now worth a fortune, is played by Peggy Lautenschlager, a graduate student in drama from Bakersfield, Calif.

Lance Paul Wells portrays Warren Cramer, who learned to paint from Christopher Bean. He is a junior in international relations from Phoenix, Ariz.

The three art dealers who swarm to the Haggert house looking for original Bean paintings are played by Michael Thompson, Roy Wetyl and Robert Alto.

Jim Tyrrell paces 53rd ward to BYU softball title

By R. C. ROBERG

Usually the mark of a good hitter is not the amount of power he possesses, but his ability to be consistent, and able to hit in the clutch.

The 53rd ward, winners of the BYU fast-pitch softball championship for the third year in a row possess such a hitter in Jim Tyrrell.

Denny Howard (9) of the 53rd ward crosses the plate before the tag is applied by Larry Flood of the 54th ward. The 53rd ward won the BYU softball title for the third straight year with a hard fought 6-4 win over the 54th ward last Thursday.

Freshmen highlight 1971 Spring Championships

The 1971 National Collegiate Athletic Association Spring Championships will be remembered by the freshmen who graduated to upper class status with honors.

No less than four members of the class of '69 were major individual winners, while a host of others made it the best freshman showing since the NCAA granted four years of Championship eligibility in 1968.

Bob Greenhaw's 72-hole total of 273 set an NCAA mark as Texas won the University Division Golf Championship. UCLA's Jimmy Connors won the UD Tennis title as the Bruins successfully defended the team crown. In the CD Track Championships, the College Division of the State of Oregon's LSU New Orleans to the golf title, while Bob Chappell enabled UC Irvine to retain its tennis championship by capturing the CD singles final.

The only double winner at the CD Track Championships was Gordon Minty, a freshman at Eastern Michigan. And at Omaha, while Southern California was winning the UD Baseball championship for the seventh time, the Most Valuable Player award went to Tulsa first baseman Jerry Tabb. Tabb, if you haven't guessed, also was a first-year man.

Tyrrell, earlier in the season singlehandedly stole a game in the 79th ward when he walked, pulled a delayed steal of second base, and scored on a throwing error by the pitcher. Again later in the season Tyrrell drove in the winning run in the 53rd ward's win over the 80 & 76 ward 4-3.

In the championship bracket of the fast-pitch division the 53rd ward meet the 54th ward for the right to represent the 53rd in the tournament. The 54th ward at the start of the season wasn't even counted on as being the team that would eventually make it into the championship bracket.

Led by the strong arm pitching of Dave Knight and the lusty hitting of Larry Flood, the 54th ward made its presence felt by the opposition by chalking up 10 runs to 4 in the first two games against the tournament favorites.

The 54th ward jumped on Ward's starting pitcher Al Ward for two runs in the first inning. But the 53rd ward came back with four runs in the third to take a 4-2 lead.

However, the 54th ward refused to panic, and scored a singleton in the fourth to cut the lead to 4-3. The 53rd ward then scored 4-4 in the sixth on a single, a stolen base, and another single.

But the 53rd ward came back in the top half of the seventh to put the game out of reach on a two-run-scoring double to left by Tyrrell.

NCAA council to meet in S.F.

A meeting which should produce significant long-range decisions will take the NCAA Council to San Francisco August 19-21.

The Council will consider recommendations from the Association's Committee on Financial Aid, which has been laboring since appointed in October 1969 to find means whereby intercollegiate athletics may reduce operating expenses.

NCAA president, Earl M. Ramey, University of Tennessee, will preside at the meeting.

Transmitter ill- - - KBYU-FM worried

KBYU-FM has been operating with its fingers crossed for the last six months.

While awaiting the arrival of a new transmitter, the station could temporarily turn off the air if other tubes fail in the present transmitter, said Ralph Silver, def engineer at KBYU-FM.

According to Silver, the present transmitter is so old that replacement tubes cannot be purchased and, with the new transmitter coming, it is not economically feasible to rebuild

Even with engineers working continuously to keep the old transmitter operating, the station is been on the air for brief periods of time on about three occasions, but each time engineers are able to repair the trouble. The new transmitter, a 300-watt RCA broadcast transmitting unit, will allow the BYU-FM signal to reach more people and provide a stronger signal to the areas now being served by the present station. Silver said that the RCA has informed him that the new custom-built transmitter is now in the final testing stage and could arrive in mid-August. He said it will then take about a week to install and test the transmitter before the station can put it on the air.

Broadcast Services' employees have completed the installation of the transmission line at the new transmitter location on Mt. Vernon. The new transmitter will be housed in the KCPX building and will be maintained by KCPX, said Silver.

New scholarships now available

Five six-hour scholarships are available to Evening School Students (ONLY) for one semester (or summer) of the academic year.

Applications for the scholarships must reach the Undergraduate Scholarship Office, B-164 ASB, no later than August 27, 1971.

Students with 3.5 GPA will be considered for scholarships while those with less than 3.5 GPA will be considered for financial awards. Need will be given consideration when two or more applicants have similar qualifications.

Forum featured British educator

Dr. Arthur Henry King, former assistant director-general and controller of the Education Division of the British Council, spoke on "The Wandering Scholar" at Forum assembly August 5.

He explained that he chose this subject because this is the term used to describe the medieval scholars' practice of wandering from university to university, using Latin everywhere. Nowadays, though, English is the universal language.

King commented that cultural influence among nations prepares for a change in political power realities but is not able to effect such changes itself. "There is no difference between the greater countries and the smaller ones in this respect," he observed, noting "all countries are caught in conflicting tides of far wider cultural movements."

He posed the question "What can the developed countries expect that developing countries need and can use?" Rather than educational systems and technologies, he contends that "...openness of mind ... and people who will see and compare and help" are the best exports.

Commenting on missionary work, King noted that in the Church, "We have our own unique opportunity because we combine the true church with faith and follow-up."

Audio/Recording Seminar brings specialists to BYU

Some of the nation's foremost authorities in the audio and recording fields are on the BYU campus this week.

Participants in the final week of the fifth annual Audio/Recording Seminar, the visiting industry executives will be instructing approximately 125 people from all over the United States, Canada and Germany.

Among the professional personnel in jazz recording artist Stan Kenton and his orchestra, Kenton will present a jazz concert in the Fine Arts Center today night, according to Dean Van Utter, assistant director of BYU's Electronic Media Department. All day Thursday the Capitol Records star will be involved in four-track recording workshops with the seminar.

Van Utter commented that the workshop will record all live music that is played on stage. The tentative title for the record album is "Stan Kenton at BYU."

The list of professional speakers include Harold Stribich, alternate trustee of the National Board of Trustees of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, Milton T. Putman, president of United Recording Corporation of Hollywood and Vernon O. Knudsen, Chairman Emeritus of the Graduate Division of the University of California.

Other guest lecturers are Robert A. Bloom, president of Audio Designs and Manufacturing, Inc., Joseph D. Kelly, vice-president in charge of operations for Glen Glenn Sound, John M. Earle, director of marketing of commercial sound products for Altec-Lansing Corporation, and Howard S. Holman, president of Holman Audio Engineering Corporation.

He also stated that the seminar will feature Bernard Katz, Eastern Regional Manager of B&K Instruments, and J. Jerryd Ferrree, vice-president of Engineering at United Recording Corporation.

"The most tremendous thing about this short seminar," said Van Utter, "is the cooperation and support from the guest speakers." He further commented that all the speakers have come on their own time without financial remuneration.

"These men, many of whom have been at BYU before, are here because they like BYU and what the school stands for," said Van Utter. "They have a desire to contribute something to the audio/recording industry as well as their general impression of BYU are motivating factors bringing the lecturers to the seminar."

Over $20,000 worth of equipment has been loaned from various electronic and audio/recording companies. These also will be featured in the seminar.

This week's 5-day seminar culminates a five-week course for about 65 people interested in the audio/recording industry. For the first four weeks the participants were given information on various electronic, audio and recording technology. Six semester hours of University credit will be awarded to those completing the five-week curriculum.

Women's Office sponsors Crafts Day

Feeling creative? Make it a point to participate in Crafts Day, to be held tomorrow and Thursday between the hours of 12:00 and 3:30 in the reception center of the Wilkinson Center. All students are invited to observe and experiment with unusual and useful avenues of creative expression.

Sponsored by the Women's Office, experts will be on hand to demonstrate candle making, bread making, cake decoration, macrame', ceramics, hooked rugs, and other crafts. Students may make their own articles under professional supervision no charge.

It's a good time to start on the Christmas gift list, or to make knick-knacks for your apartment or home. It isn't just for ladies, fellows. So make your presence known.

TAKE Field Botany OR 38 OTHER LATE SUMMER CLASSES

During the interim period between the end of Summer School and the beginning of the Fall Semester 1971, several credit courses will be offered on the Brigham Young University campus. These are regular academic courses carrying residence credit toward a degree. These classes can aid students working toward early graduation. Also LATE SUMMER classes will assist students in completing many of their basic courses outside of the regular academic year.
